

2014 NORTHWEST FRESH SEAFOOD COMPANY
RADICALLY FRESH IDEA AWARD - EDUCATION

Northwest Fresh Seafood Company embodies the pioneering spirit of the great Northwest. We love fresh air, fresh people, fresh opportunities, fresh ideas and of course radically fresh seafood! This passion keeps us searching for the freshest ideas and goods we can find. When we find them, we celebrate them. This month we want to reward the freshest idea in education that we can find right here in our own backyard.

Here's how it works. If you are a teacher using a "Fresh" idea to inspire and engage your students, we want to know about it. It could be a radically fresh approach to cultivating a love for classic literature. Maybe it's a radically fresh application of technology in the classroom. It may be a radically fresh approach to cultivating a positive school climate. The only hard and fast rules are:

1. The idea must be yours. It can be an adaptation or unique application of a principle that you have learned but the approach must be radically fresh and your own.
2. The idea must have a direct and positive impact on student learning.
3. The idea must be producing real fruit. You should be able to cite at least three examples articulating the impact that you are seeing in the lives of your students.

In order to participate, write a one-page summary of your Radically Fresh Idea for Education and bring it by our Newberg location (611 N. Main St. Newberg Oregon) by March 31st. Your summary should include a description of the idea, the "why" behind it and some examples showing how it is impacting students in your classroom.

We will read each submission and our staff will vote to select the 2014 "Radically Fresh Idea for Education." The top three ideas will be celebrated on our Facebook page. The winning idea will be featured in the Radically Fresh Ideas section on our website.

We look forward to meeting you and hearing about the great things you are doing for students in your district.

Good luck!
